MOMO Challenge - a parent guide

You may well be aware of a recent online development called the MOMO Challenge. Essentially, players who want to take part search online for a number to text or WhatsApp. Once they have sent the first message they get replies including some particularly harmful or distressing content.

This excellent guide for parents highlights the fact that occurrences of the MOMO Challenge are 'few and far between'. This does not detract from the potential harm and distress it may cause any child who comes into contact with it. Please take the time to read the article by clicking below. Thank you.
